Elizabeth, Michael and I still work well as a team, however with this project we did duplicate much of the work to build functionality. I think we could have taken more time to work up front deciding how to implement and do a better job dividing up the work. We seem to all work independently, and this created many working versions of the same concept with variations.

Feedback is quick and helpful, supportive. Heath and Chilcoat are very good programmers and put in time to complete projects.
